This fascinating seminar looks at the development of a third nervous system based on Porges' Polyvagal Tone Theory and how the vagus nerve seems to be San Jiao; an ancient description of a psychophysical function that is not associated with an organ. Modern research indicates that the San Jiao may be, in fact the vagus nerve and its impact on emotional regulation.

THIS SEMINAR INCLUDES:

- An introduction to autonomic, endocrine and enteric systems, and their relationship to emotional disorders
- A cross-disciplinary approach to treating psychophysical disorders
- Bringing traditional Chinese concepts into alignment with modern bio-medicine
- Herbs and compounds selected for their research: an EBM approach to treatment
